DATA-DRIVEN PROFESSIONAL

I am a versatile professional who enjoys bridging the gap between data analysis, communication, and customer-oriented thinking. My strength lies in translating complex data into clear stories—visually, strategically, and aligned with the client's needs.

Management

I am looking for a role where I can combine analytical insights with storytelling, client interaction, and ownership of projects. Think of positions within product management, project management, or account management, where I aim to create value at the intersection of data, processes, and human interaction.
